

THIS.... is a 2002 Mercedes G500 with a striking Tectite Gray Metallic exterior and a classic Grey/Black interior. This vehicle has only been driven for 128,000 km and has a clean accident history, verified by Carfax. Canadian-spec G500 that's titled and located in Montreal, Canada.

Modifications include adjustable FOX 2.0 Performance Series shock absorbers, a FOX 2.0 Performance Series steering stabilizer, a 1.5-inch Eurowise lift kit, polyurethane front and rear radius arm bushings, Sachs "red" front and "white" rear springs, a COMEUP winch, a push bar, G55-style headlights, and more as detailed below.

I'm selling my beloved G500, which I purchased in November with the intent of doing a full restoration and bringing it to a like-new state. After searching for many months, I found this early-year G500 with very low mileage that ticked all the boxes: no accidents, extremely low mileage and not too many owners.

I had intended to keep it long-term, which is why I spared no expense during its service, steering, and suspension overhaul. I'm an enthusiast with many cars, but due to a change in priorities over the past few months, I've decided to let this one go. At present, the car drives better than when it was new, thanks to its upgraded Fox suspension and Eurowise components.

This G-Wagon is perfect for collectors, overland adventurers, off-roaders, or even someone looking for an everyday vehicle.
